To Cure Sore Throat.
So many people have been troubled with sore throats this spring. It is most unwise to allow this condition to progress, since many serious forms of sickness start with "just a sore throat." When the throat feels raw, half-hour gargling periods, using warm salt water, are advised. This is an antiseptic and removes the irritation. Again equal parts of listerine, water and peroxide is even more effective. For an annoying tickling in the throat an application of hot glycerin rubbed thoroughly into the pores and covered with warm flannel gives relief.

WOMEN SUFFERERS MAY NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.
Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.
If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.
Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.
Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.
Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.
However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Six Days in Cellar.
An unusual adventure befell Lieut. S. Smith McLean, Australian. When the men of his patrol were falling all around him he dashed into a house to attack the garrison. As he mounted the stairs he was hit by an enemy bomb and knocked out, losing his revolver. One of his men managed to get him into a cellar, and for six days he remained there with nothing to eat but iron rations. Three nights he attempted to recross the enemy front line, but was unable to do so. He was eventually rescued by British troops.

Bee-Keeping in New Zealand.
At the late annual meeting of the Waikato Beekeepers' association at Hamilton, an assistant director of the horticultural division of the department of agriculture stated that there were 4,391 apiaries registered in New Zealand, representing 50,523 colonies of bees. One beekeeper last year returned 30 tons of honey, which he sold at $487 per ton, while some was sold as high as $730 per ton, thus making it a very prosperous industry.

Pay Little Heed to War Clothes

New York.—The radicals are at it again. They are agitating for the standardization of women's dress as a war measure of equal importance with the conservation of food. Rumors of frocks all alike, cut by the millions and placed on the market for the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, so that they may become sisters in their attire as well as under their skins, comments a fashion authority, reach us from time to time through the sections of the daily press devoted to women's affairs.
Sometimes the arguments are quite learned. The French revolution is freely quoted as being the event finally responsible for the standardization of men's dress. To be sure, one of the first things that Napoleon did, when he reached the position of being able to set the fashion, was to make men's clothes as gorgeous and as complex as they had been before the abolition of the Bourbons. But the effect did not last long. "Sans culottism" had taken too firm a hold on men's affections. They soon went back to that dignified but ugly garment, the long trousers, and they have remained faithful to them ever since.
Students of the history of costume cite this as an example, and tell us—some hopefully, some regretfully—that the present Armageddon will do the same for women. But then come others—students, too, but students of the willingly and oftener than any woman; he will brush his clothes—but there his sartorial measures of preparedness end. So he is naturally restricted to a form of garment which is easily kept in order.

Man's Insensibility to Temperature.
Another reason is the average man's absolute insensibility to changes in temperature—at least from the woman's point of view. He declares that there is a vast difference in warmth between his winter-weight blue serge and his summer weight, but no woman can see it. To her he is a mystery as he goes to his office on a boiling August morning, clad completely in wool, with a high-starched collar round his neck and thick leather shoes on his feet. Just as great a mystery is she to him in winter, with her georgette sleeves, thin stockings and paper-soled pumps. Probably it is six of one and half a dozen of the other.

But there is an army of women who go clothed in cotton and linen from May to October; who will pay extravagant laundry bills if they live in the city; who will travel with an electric iron in their trunks when they visit the country; who will pay almost any price in time, money and convenience for the privilege of wearing thin clothes throughout the dog days.

There is a great army of them who still, in spite of war work, make their own summer frocks, by the aid of a

AS TAFFETA IS USED IN OUR SUMMER CLOTHES.
Smart cape-coat of black taffeta to wear over lingerie frocks. The yoke and bottom of the coat are of black taffeta, and the center portion is of white embroidered in black. human nature back of the clothes, rather than of the clothes themselves—and they give an emphatic No! to the whole proposition.

"The standardization of women's dress has gone as far now as it ever will," is their contention.

Easy to Get Into.
Very busy women—and what other kind is there at present—may make insistent demands for clothes that are easy to get into. "Easily adjusted, madam," will sell more gowns this season than the catch phrase, "This is what they're wearing." Coats and suits and one-piece dresses will maintain their popularity; "shirtwaists" that launder like a man's shirt will refuse to be ousted. But there will always be more variety in women's dress than there is in men's, and women as a whole will continue to be more preoccupied with the question of wherewithal they shall be clothed.

One reason for the continuance of variety in feminine attire, in spite of wars and rumors of wars, is the fact that women as a whole are rested by a change of occupation. So the business woman, on her return from her office, is quite willing to sit down to stocking darning, so that she may continue to wear the thread-bare hose in which her heart delights; she sits up late to run ribbons in her lingerie; she will wash out and iron her own neckwear in order that she may make her serge suit or frock more becoming by softening it with frills at the throat. Did anyone ever hear of the man who washed his own collars? He will polish his own shoes—tradition says that he will perform this operation more tissue paper pattern. There is another even larger group who solve six months' dressmaking problems by buying gingham and muslin and hiring the services of a dressmaker "by the day."

Are all these women going to be bound down by standardization? Of course not.

Summer Fabrics Fascinating.
Besides the feminine failing of buying a thing, not because one needs it, but because it is cheap, to which the makers of summer fabrics have always catered, there is the eternal fascination of the materials themselves—their sympathetic surfaces, their freshness, their delicious color.

This year we are more discreet. Brilliant tones are still to be seen, but the general feeling is one of moderation in all things, even in color.

Fabrics, too, are discreet. Very popular are net, foulard and organdie. One may be gay in foulard, it is true, but one is more apt to be navy blue or black or gray in it. Organdie is subtle in its color range, not striking, and the clothes that we construct of it have an atmosphere of "old-time-ness" far removed from anything so smashing, flashing, as the Russian ballet color combinations. In less expensive fabrics, which are among the few things that remain within the reach of the woman of modest budget, there are the printed volles, the ever-popular gingham, and the season's revival, calico, or percale, to give it the name under which it is sold in most places. KIND TO PRISONERS—GUILTY

German Women Warned That They Will Be Punished for "Lack of Self-Respect."

Women, even the miraculous German superwomen, are incorrigible, observes a writer in the Literary Digest. The German government has just discovered to its horror that Gretchen, in common with all the daughters of Eve, is not insensible to the charms of a well favored man, and, if given the opportunity, even she is disposed to flirt. The Frankfurter Zeitung indignantly writes:

"Female inhabitants of houses adjacent to camps of officer prisoners of war have communication with the imprisoned officers, and even throw them things. Thanks, however, to the sharp lookout kept by the authorities, the attempts in each case were frustrated. The guilty persons, who belong to all classes of society and are of various ages, were discovered."

"While the police authorities have hitherto considered sharp reprimands as sufficient warnings, in the belief that such unconsidered acts were due to a foolish desire for sensation, in future such conduct will be visited by very severe legal penalties and public exposure. These penalties will furthermore be imposed without discrimination on all who may render themselves guilty of such lack of self-respect."

Iceland Will Plant More Potatoes.
Iceland will make a new departure this year in the matter of using potato flour. Representatives of that government are sending out propaganda looking to the general and extensive planting of potatoes this year. Since the summer season is so short in Iceland and other Arctic countries, the raising of grain is not possible, but its climate is adapted to the raising of potatoes. Plans are being made for the installation of potato milling machinery, so that in a measure Iceland will in the future be a little more independent of outsiders for its farinaceous foods. Shortages of shipping, with a consequent curtailment of imports has made it impossible to maintain Iceland's wheat supplies.

From Our Soldiers' Graves.
At present, in the case of American soldiers who die in France, a cross marks the grave. At the transverse of the cross stands a metal shield with a design in low relief revealing a youth with broken sword, his face lifted to heaven. Round the shield runs the inscription: "He died to keep men free." Underneath are his name and regimental status. It is the intention of the Red Cross to remit this shield of glory to his relatives after the war, when some permanent form of remembrance shall have been devised by the war department.—Elizabeth Frazer, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Saved His Comrade.
A few months ago an American seaman who was swimming in tropical waters was attacked by a school of sharks and his leg was bitten off. The fins of four other sharks were visible near by and it seemed certain that the unfortunate sailor would soon be torn to pieces, when Wallace Odell Prater, a machinist, dove into the blood-stained water and brought the wounded man safely to the ship. In recognition of this rare act of bravery Prater was awarded a gold life-saving medal by the secretary of the treasury. He lives in Stafford, Kan.
